

Kolby Wyatt and the Chasing Texas Band
with guest Amanda Cevallos
Saturday, April 22 at 7:30 p.m.

Kolby Wyatt, a Garland Texas cowboy, is described by his friends as a "Gentleman Outlaw." His unique music style is not confined to any particular genre, so he defined a new one. He best describes it as Alt Country Rock Americana. His music is heavily influenced by all Legends of Country Music, including Merle Haggard, George Jones and Hank Williams. Kolby intends to answer the question in the George Jones song "Whose Gonna Fill Their Shoes."

For several years, Kolby was invited to play private parties for the members of the Professional Bull Riders Tour. With an overwhelming positive response in early 2017, after playing clubs in Austin, Fort Worth, Dallas and Nashville, Kolby decided to launch a national tour. The first stop will be the Palace Theatre in Grapevine.

Kolby will be joined by The Chasing Texas Band and special guest Amanda Cevallos.

A Latina country music songstress whose retro style and clean vocals garners comparisons to singers like Crystal Gayle and Kelly Willis, Amanda started a country band in Austin, recorded a live album, Country Music Turns Me On, and then decided to visit a man by the name of James White, the owner of the most well-known honky tonk in Texas. Amanda's persistent nature, custom cowboy hat and traditional country music style landed her a coveted residency at Austin's legendary honky tonk venue, The Broken Spoke.
